THE WORKSPACE

Lights up on a pile of red, green, and blue bricks. Upstage of the pile are a Turtlebot (Blue) plucks out a blue brick and carefully places it. A Blue ribbon is tied around the top of the robot. Nearby a second Turtle bot (Green) is doing the same except with green bricks. A green Ribbon is tied around its top. The building goes on for several moments until it is clear that the robots are building different walls. Once Blue has reached four layers it rolls back and inspects its work with its claw. It's an inspection gesture that gives the impression that Blue is looking at its work. It then repositions and repeats the process. Satisfied it put's it's single arm Akimbo and spins around before going back to work. Green does the same thing when it reaches five layers on it's wall.

A third Turtlebot (Red) enters from stage right at full speed. A red mohawk graces the top of this Robot. Once Red is past Green it stops suddenly and turns to see what is going on with the other two. Red then goes to the pile and picks up a red brick and starts building up a wall. Instead of grabbing another red brick though, Red grabs a blue, then a green, and so on in no order, building it's own wall.

This goes on for several minutes until Blue stops to inspect it's own work. It's satisfied until it sees what Red is doing and reacts in surprise. Doing a double take with the arm. Blue then goes and looks at what Red is doing. It shakes it's arm in a 'No' gesture before turning around in distress. Blue goes over to Green and gets it's attention and points at Red. Green reacts in surprise and then grabs a red brick. Green rushes over to Red and shows it a Red brick by setting it down in front of Red. Red looks with its arm at Green and Blue. It then picks up the red brick and puts it on the wall. It looks back at the other two with it's arm.

Green and Blue nod with their arms in approval and go back to their walls. Red picks up a blue or green brick and puts it on its wall. Green sees this and gets Blue's attention. This time both grab a red brick and place them in front of Red. Red looks at them and then places them on its wall. Placated Blue and Green go back to their work. Until one of them notices that Red is back using all the colors again.

Blue and green turn and huddle close to Stage Right. They turn just slightly to make it look they are whispering. Occasionally one or the other will gesture up with its arm to look at Red who continues to work on its wall. They huddle for several moments and then hold their arms up like they have both come to a conclusion. Both rush off stage right and return a moment later with little blue tubs. They set their tubs down in the path that Red is using to get to the pile. They start sorting out their green and blue bricks into their tubs. Every time Red tries to get to the pile Blue or Green Repositions to block Red.

Frustrated, red goes around its wall and pulls a brick off of Green's wall and puts it on to its wall. This happens several times until Green sees what Red is doing and holds its arm up in dismay and spins in a wide circle. Green then tries to stop Red by sitting in front of its wall. Undeterred Red simply goes to Blue's wall and starts pulling bricks off its wall. Blue moves to stop Red from tearing down its wall.

Seeing a path open Red goes back to the pile of bricks and starts to pick out blocks for its wall. Green comes around and gives chase. Red heads off in the opposite direction and goes the long way around to its wall but still manages to put the block on its wall. Red goes as quickly as possible to grab a new brick and heads around the long way again. This time Blue goes to cut Red off. Frustrated Red charges through Blue's wall destroying it on the way to the multicolored wall at the end of the row. Blue looks on in dismay.

Green Laughs and points. Blue shakes its arm at Green and then destroys Green's wall. Green looks on in dismay. Red picks up some of the fallen bricks to put together its wall. Green and Blue watch Red for a moment. They look at the destruction of their walls. They look back at Red's wall. Then back at their work. Then Both head for Red's wall. Red sees them coming and moves to defend. Blue and Green stare at Red for a moment and then each pick up an opposing colored block and set it on Red's wall. Red rolls back in surprise. Blue and green continue to add more brick to the wall.

Red picks up a brick and then joins Blue and green as they put together the wall.

Fade to black.
